THAT DEPOT AGAIN

Rumor Is Rife that the Depot Will be Moved from Its Present Location -

WILL OUR CITIZENS SUBMIT?

A New Depot Is Needed and Steps Should be Taken at Once to Secure Many Needed Improvements

At the present time much talk is going the rounds in regard to the proposed moving of the Antioch depot. Many and varied are the opinions of the people in regard to the matter. Some time ago, we are informed, a representative of the Wisconsin Central railroad company visited this place to ascertain the sentiment of the people in regard to moving the depot, or of building a new one on the present site. While the citizens one and all heartily agree that we are badly in need of a new depot, most of them are in favor of the location remaining the same. Some however are of the opinion that it should be moved south. Some of the citizens argue the matter as follows: That should the depot be moved south the traffic which now goes through the business part of our town, would then only skirt the south end of the village and instead of the summer people stopping in town, they would go around the bend disorderly in, direct to the lake, not consequently the merchants would have their usual busy hour after the noon of the trains when the money spent by the city people helps to a great extent in increasing the cash in the tills of our local merchants. The representative of the railroad company seems to think that no better site could be procured than by moving the depot north to the present stock yards location. This move also has its objections but they are not as strongly set forth as those to the other move.

When the Wisconsin Central railroad was given the right of way through this village, the citizens of Antioch township raised, so we are told, the sum of $8000 for the erection of a depot, and the land was deeded to the railroad company by Uncle Joe Rinear, with the clause attached that the ground be maintained for depot purposes. And the question now most interesting to our citizens is "Can the depot be moved without the consent of the people?"

It surely needs a larger and more commodious depot than we have at the present time. At no place hereabouts does the road receive more passengers than at Antioch, especially during the summer months, and yet, towns much smaller than ours can boast of much better depot accommodations. Often in the summer people are compelled to stand outside while waiting for trains on account of inadequate room inside and in case of rain storms have to seek shelter under the sheds. Among its other improvements Antioch needs a public park and why would it not be a good idea for the citizens to purchase the Aaron property, west of the track, with filling and grading could be made into an ideal spot for the purpose.

If the railroad company would build a new and modern depot, the citizens could, they so desired, donate sufficient ground from this piece of property for the purpose and thus help to beautify a rather unhand-some part of town.

Taking the matter as a whole, the majority of our citizens agree that a more satisfactory place for a depot could not be found than the present site, and if the people vote the matter to decide it will undoubtedly remain where it is.

Delivered the Goods.

The late Senator M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, kept all the letters his constituents wrote to him asking for favors, says the Saturday Evening Post. He had stacks of them when he died. Then he sorted out the letters, eliminating those from people who were dead and on the back of each letter wrote: "Dear John or Bill, I remember when you wrote me that and you asked me if I want your money in my fight for the senate. I have it." The politicians in Pennsylvania say those letters mailed by the backs of them, had as many one thing to do with winning his fight.

WINDS UP IN FIST BATTLE

Libertyville Races Develop a Fist Fight, Most Disgraceful and Uncalled For Bad management and a free-for-all fight in which several persons were injured demoralized the motor races at Libertyville Thursday and sent the hundreds of enthusiasts who attended the meet home in disgust. Six races with a total of nine heats had been scheduled by the Libertyville Motor Racing association for the day's program and the bait, together with the fine weather, brought down crowds from Chicago and other neighboring points. There was a total of thirty-six entries and the whole gave promise of great sport at the old race course.

But all the plans were awry. The card resolved itself into four races scantily entered, and before it was half through with the crowd had thinned down to a handful. The fight was a disgraceful affair and will put a cloud on the racing of autos at Libertyville. Four young men from Chicago, evidently of wealthy parents, were drunk and continued to make a disturbance on the track. They refused to leave the track on request of the special officers, they defied arrest and also made several passes at persons who protested against their actions.

Finally, one young man got tired of their insults and he landed on one of them. That started things and in a minute the whole crowd of men were smashing right and left.

The fellows were knocked down, kicked and finally picked up and put into their car and taken off the track by another driver.

The feature spoiled the remainder of the events for the crowd at once dispersed. The men should have been arrested and locked up without allowing them to spoil such an interesting meeting. It would be a wonder if they got home without an accident because all were so drunk.

STORM STRIKES ZION CITY

Houses Struck by Lightning and people Overcome by Shock.

Last week Sunday afternoon a terrific storm swept over Zion City and during the storm the home of Daniel Hardinger on Elizabeth ave., was struck by lightning and the chimney demolished. Miss Grace Hardinger was overcome by the shock but nothing serious resulted.

At the same time that Miss Grace was affected Mr. A. Raymond Rief, who was passing the Hardinger home was seriously affected as to remain unconscious the greater part of the afternoon.

The home of Benj. Sweeney, on Elm avenue was also visited by lightning and the chimney entirely demolished.

The home of G. W. Pyle on Elm avenue was not overlooked. A window was broken and the frame surrounding it ripped into fragments. The storm raged for some time and the people of Zion feel that they are indeed fortunate that no one was killed or seriously injured during its fury.

ONE MAN WOUNDED

Quarrel Resulted With One Man Wounded and Two Others in Jail.

A quarrel started in the wire mills at Waukegan on Saturday night, came to a thrilling climax Sunday morning when the night gang laid off and Valentine Petronie, one of the men in the quarrel, was attacked and his head cut open, by Anton Batagawics and Louis Valentine.

Petronie claims that when the three men quarreled Saturday night, the other two told him they would wait outside for him and they did. He claims that when they jumped on him one struck him with a dinner pail and the other with a knife.

The cuts are both bad, but a only scalp wounds. The alleged assailants were captured by the police and lodged in jail. Later they were fined and both promptly paid.

DECORATE SOLDIERS GRAVES

The parade to the cemetery on the morning of decoration day was somewhat larger than usual, and notwithstanding the backward spring, an abundance of flowers had been procured for the occasion. The procession was formed in front of the M. E. church at about nine o'clock and the old soldiers led by Dr. Ames and accompanied by the Antioch band and the school children marched to the cemetery where they decorated the graves of the departed soldiers and sailors. Mrs. Lena Gaggia, with the scholars of the primary room, each bearing a basket of flowers and a small flag brought up the rear of the procession. After the services at the cemetery were completed many took the 10:40 train to Burlington where elaborate ceremonies took place. In honor of the day business places were closed for the afternoon, the band rendered numerous selections and the American flag floated from in front of many of the residences.

SAYS IT IS WORST IN COUNTY

The Rev. Quayle Deplores the Opening of the Saloon at Rondout

WAS CLOSED AT ONE TIME

This is the Place Where, a Few Months Ago, a Man Was Supposed to Have Met His Death

The Rev. Thomas Quayle, secretary of the Lake county Law and Order League, is much perturbed over the fact that the saloon at Rondout is again operating, being run by a Mr. Dalton.

This is the saloon from which, some time ago, it was reported that a man was killed and inter thrown on the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, to cover up, it was said, a tragedy.

Said Mr. Quayle: "I regret very much that this place is being allowed to operate, and I was given to understand it would not be permitted to run. This is the worst place in the county to have a saloon, being near the intersection of the St. Paul, the E. J. and E. and the electric line, and also being near the rich homes of Armour and other Chicago men who have many workmen in their employ."

"I don't know what will be done but it is a shame that it is going to operate." This saloon, it is recalled, was closed up shortly after the man in question was killed a few months ago.

DECLINES STATES ATTORNEY

Neither Hanna or Miller Will Run for the Office—Return to Private Practice

Although election is yet a year away, mention of aspirants for the state's attorney's office is already being made. The nominations for the office will be made in April of next year.

On account of the interest being taken in the matter, Assistant State's Attorney Miller, in an interview stated that neither he or State's Attorney Hanna would be a candidate for the office.

"I have been connected with the office for three or four years, and have had as much to do with it as though state's attorney. I now wish to devote my entire time to private practice."

"I have the position of secretary to the Naval Committee at Washington and this, with private practice, will take up all my time, much of which must now be sacrificed to the duties of state's attorney."

"We are both grateful to the republican party for the courtesies they have shown us, but we feel it no more than fair that the office should be passed around, and as many have come to both of us, asking if we would make the run, we desire to announce that we will not be candidates."

PALTRY $2000 FOR COMMON LAW WIFE

In the Circuit Court at Racine, Wednesday, Judge Belden rendered judgment of $2,000 in favor of Alvina Ruppel, the Kenosha woman who sued Joe Pacini, the Italian fruit dealer, for that amount of damages accruing to her during the several years' residence with the man under the belief that she was his common law wife.

The story of the case is an interesting one. The woman came to this country when 18 years of age and meeting Pacini was persuaded by him to live with him at his home. He promised to marry her, but failed to do so, and a year ago, after three children had been born to the woman, she discovered that Pacini had a wife and family in Italy.

Suit was brought and the case ended in the woman's favor and Wednesday morning judgment was rendered for her. Pacini, claimed to be worth $50,000, is still under arrest on a criminal charge.

Pacini has a fruit store in Waukegan on Washington street.

BLAST WRECKS TRAIN

Car Loaded With Dynamite Blows Up in Middle of a Long Freight

THREE KILLED, TEN HURT

Depot Demolished and Nearly Every Window Glass in the Town is Shattered in an Illinois Town

Three men were killed and ten persons were injured Tuesday afternoon by the explosion of a car load of dynamite in the middle of a long freight train on the Chicago and Indiana Southern railroad at the station at Reddick, Ill. The bodies of the two men were scattered for a hundred yards in every direction, and the third victim was several hundred feet from the scene when he was struck down by a flying bolt.

The explosion shattered practically every window in the town, wrecked the depot and splintered a number of cars of the long train. Bits of the wreckage were hurled for half a mile and several of those injured were far from the scene when they were hurt.

The explosion was caused by a fire in a tank of gasoline. This blew up shortly after the train stopped, and the members of the crew thought the first explosion was that of the dynamite. They were going back to investigate and citizens were rushing toward the wreck from all directions when the second and greater explosion occurred.

The train was at once stopped, but because of the proximity of the dynamite car none of the trainmen would go back to fight the flames until after the first explosion. Then thinking that all danger had passed every one rushed to the middle of the train just in time to be struck by the debris from the second blast. Frazee, Stokdon and Powell were riding in an empty box car next to the car of dynamite. How Powell escaped death when his companions were blown to pieces is a mystery. He soon regained consciousness and it is thought he will recover.

A large section of the track was blown up, and it will be some time before traffic can be resumed on the line. A number of the cars burned after the explosion had scattered flaming gasoline over them.

THEY RAISE SOME AND LOWER OTHERS

Announcement has been made at the postoffice department of the readjustment of salaries of postmasters in Illinois and Iowa to take effect at the beginning of the new fiscal year, on July 1.

Increase of $100 a year in the salaries of postmasters in the following Lake county towns was announced:

Antioch, North Chicago, Fort Sheridan, $200. Zion City, $200.

FIRELESS COOKER PROVES A SUCCESS

On Friday afternoon last, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Erringer of Lake Bluff successfully demonstrated the advantages of the fireless cooker over the usual method of preparing food. The supper which they served consisted of boiled ham, beans and rice pudding, cooked in the fireless cooker, and such other edibles as the Ladies Aid furnished to make up a first class supper. Over eighty people partook of the repast and all pronounced the food cooked in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. and Mrs. Erringer started the food cooking then placed it in the cookers and loaded them into a bus then proceeded to drive from Lake Bluff to Antioch, the food cooking on the way. This fact alone proves the efficiency of the cooker and demonstrates how successfully the housewife may start her meals then go out calling or busy herself otherwise about the house without once looking at her food until time to place it on the table. After thoroughly explaining the invention and serving the food cooked therein, Mr. Erringer left no doubt in the minds of the people as to the success of the cooker. It is not only a labor saver but a fuel saver as well. Mrs. W. F. Ziegler has accepted the agency for them in this vicinity, and any one wishing particulars and prices may procure the same by calling on her.

START CAR FERRY SERVICE

First Car Ferry Arrived at Waukegan on Friday With Thirty Cars Aboard

An important industry was inaugurated Friday for Waukegan when the first car ferry which is to play between that city and Wisconsin and Michigan ports, brought thirty cars there and landed at the new car ferry slip north of the coal docks.

The car ferry is the Pere Marquette number 16, Capt. Johnson in charge. With the first boat came the general freight manager, Mr. Fitzgerald, and chief engineer Rasch.

The ferry carried thirty freight cars, loaded with 1,700 tons of iron ore and they were placed on the E. J. & E. tracks to be taken to Joliet where they are consigned.

The boat came from Peshtigo, Wis., and made a very fast trip have left there but eighteen hours before pulling into port at Waukegan Friday morning.

That the inauguration of this service in Waukegan is an important feature is shown by the fact that the company which operates the ferry, the Lake Michigan Car Ferry Transportation company, is already planning to have business going out of port as well as coming in.

Said Mr. Fitzgerald: "We are to make trips to Waukegan every forty-eight hours after a time and we hope to get shipments of all kinds to and from port. We are to carry all kinds of freight that trains carry and we make much faster time than railroads hence we can get the business because it is a cheaper method of transportation. We shall bring lumber, coal, posts, etc., and have great hopes of business here. The company operates two large car ferries. The slip and dock for us is now nearly all finished."

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES

Odd Fellows, Woodmen, Rebekah and Royal Neighbors Will Observe Day, Sunday

The memorial day services of the Odd Fellow, Woodmen, Rebekah and Royal Neighbor lodges of this place will be held on Sunday afternoon, June 9th. The Odd Fellows and Woodmen will meet at the Woodmen hall at one o'clock, while the Rebekah and Royal Neighbor lodges will meet at the Odd Fellow's hall at the same hour, and will form in line and march to the cemetery and place the proper decorations on the graves of their departed members.

After the graves have been decorated all the orders will return to the Woodmen hall where Attorney J. K. Orvis, of Waukegan, will deliver an address appropriate to the occasion.

Every member of each order is earnestly requested to be present on this occasion.

The Pet Animal Stage.
"Why don't you get you a cat?" asked her woman friend. "You wouldn't be half so lonely if you had some little live animal like that always around." "I haven't come to the animal stage yet, thank heaven," she replied. "When men and women lose all hope of human love they go to the animal kingdom, the men to the dogs, some literally, and the women to the cats; and they are right, perhaps, since faithfulness is to be found mainly among the animals; but as I say, I haven't quite arrived at that stage of the game yet."

KILLED BY FAST TRAIN

Ghostly Fate Overtakes Armour Laborer after Night Out at Rondout

LAUNCHED INTO ETERNITY

With Five Companions Phil McGrath Crossed in Front of Fast Train and Was Run Down Sunday Morning

Returning at one o'clock Sunday morning to the laborers' quarters on the Armour estate, west of Lake Forest, after a "night out" at Rondout, Phil McGrath was struck and instantly killed by a fast train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road between Everett and Rondout.

There were four companions with McGrath. A freight train had passed along the tracks and the whole party of five started to cross the tracks, not knowing that a fast train was following the freight. All got to the safe side of the right-of-way, except McGrath.

McGrath was struck by the engine and horribly injured, his right leg being smashed and his face and skull fractured so that he died instantly. He was tossed for some distance.

The remains were removed to Lake Forest to the Wenban rooms and there a coroner's jury held an inquest.

Mrs. Ryan, the victim's boarding house mistress, was notified and her arrival and the arrival of the train crew that ran McGrath were awaited for the inquest.

It is said that all of the party of five laborers had been drinking in a resort at Rondout and were a bit the worse for their conviviality.

Mike May is the only one of the party whose name is known. Others wrote their names on a slip of paper but they are illegible.

ROY WILLIAMS MARRIED IN KANSAS

On Thursday of this week at Dexter, Kansas, occurs the marriage of Roy D. Williams of that place, to Miss Francis Elliot, also of Dexter, formerly of Kentucky.

Mr. Williams is a practicing physician, having graduated from a Chicago Medical College some few years ago, and for some time was located at Rockford, Ill. About two years ago he went west and located at Dexter, where he met the young lady who is to become his bride.

Mrs. D. A. Williams has been visiting her son for the past two weeks, and Mr. Williams and eldest daughter Elsie, of Chicago were also present at the ceremony.

THE DELUGE

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS, Author of "THE COST OF CONSCIENCE" and "THE BOSS-MEYER COMPANY"

The first news I got was that Bill Van Nest had disappeared. As soon as the Slick Exchange opened, National Coal became the feature. But, instead of "wash sales," Roebuck, Langdon and Melville were themselves, through various brokers, buying the stocks in large quantities to keep the prices up. My next letter was as brief as my first philippic:

"Bill Van Nest is at the Hotel Frankfurt, Newark, under the name of Thomas Lowry. He was in telephonic communication with President Melville, of the National Industrial Bank, twice yesterday."

"The underwriters of the National Coal company's new issues, frightened by yesterday's exposure, have compelled Mr. Roebuck, Mr. Mowbray Langdon and Mr. Melville themselves to buy. So, yesterday, those three gentlemen bought with real money, with their own money, large quantities of stocks which are worth less than half what they paid for them."

"They will continue to buy these stocks so long as the public holds aloof. They dare not let the prices slump. They hope that this storm will blow over, and that then the investing public will forget and will relieve them of their load."

I had added: "But this storm won't blow over. It will become a cyclone." I struck that out. "No prophecy," said I to myself. "Your rule, iron-clad, must be—facts, always facts; only facts."

The gambling section of the public took my hint and rushed into the market; the burden of protecting the underwriters was doubled, and more and more of the hoarded loot was disgorged. That must have been a costly day—for, 10 minutes after the Stock Exchange closed, Roebuck sent for me.

"My compliments to him," said I to his messenger, "but I am too busy. I'll be glad to see him here, however."

"You know he dares not come to you," said the messenger, Schilling, president of the National Manufactured Food company, sometimes called the Poison Trust. "If he did, and it were to get out, there'd be a panic."

"Probably," replied I with a shrug. "That's no affair of mine. I'm not responsible for the rotten conditions which these so-called financiers have produced, and I shall not be disturbed by the crash which must come."

Schilling gave me a genuine look of mingled pity and admiration. "I suppose you know what you're about," said he, "but I think you're making a mistake."

"Thanks, Ned," said I—he had been my head clerk a few years before, and I had got him the chance with Roebuck which he had improved so well. "I'm going to have some fun. Can't live but once."

My "daily letters" had now ceased to be advertisements, had become news, sought by all the newspapers of this country and of the big cities in Great Britain. I could have made a large saving by no longer paying my sixty-odd regular papers for inserting them. But I was looking too far ahead to blunder into that fatal mistake. Instead, I signed a year's contract with each of my papers, they guaranteeing to print my advertisements, I guaranteeing to protect them against loss on libel suits. I organized a dummy news bureau, and through it got contracts with the telegraphic companies. Thus insured against the cutting of my communications with the public, I was ready for the real campaign.

It began with my "History of the National Coal company." I need not repeat that famous history here. I need recall only the main points—how I proved that the common stock was actually worth less than two dollars a share, that the bonds were worth less than twenty-five dollars in the hundred, that both stock and bonds were illegal; my detailed recital of the crimes of Roebuck, Melville and Langdon in wrecking coal railways, in ejecting American labor and substituting hordes from eastern Europe; how they had swindled and lied and bribed; how they had twisted the books of the companies, how they were planning to unload the mass of almost worthless securities at high prices, then to get from under the market and let the bonds and stocks drop down to where they could buy them in on terms that would yield them more than 250 per cent on the actual capital invested. Less and dearer coal; lower wages and more ignorant laborers; enormous profits absorbed without mercy into a few pockets.

On the day the seventh chapter of this history appeared, the telegraph companies notified me that they would transmit no more of my matter. They feared the consequences in libel suits, explained Moseby, general manager of one of the companies.

"But I guarantee to protect you," said I. "I will give bond in any amount you ask."

"We can't take the risk, Mr. Blacklock," replied he. The twinkle in his eye told me why, and also that he, like every one else in the country except the clique, was in sympathy with me.

My lawyers found an honest judge, and I got an injunction that compelled the companies to transmit under my contracts. I suspended the "History" for one day, and sent out in place of it an account of this attempt to shut me off from the public. "Hereafter," said I, in the last paragraph in my letter, "I shall end each day's chapter with a forecast of what the next day's chapter is to be. If for any reason it fails to appear, the public will know that somebody has been coerced by Roebuck, Melville & Co."

XXX.

ANITA'S SECRET.

That afternoon—or, was it the next?—I happened to go home early. I have never been able to keep alive anger against any one. My anger against Anita had long ago died away, had been succeeded by regret and remorse that I had let my nerves, or whatever the accursed cause was, whirl me into such an outburst. Not that I regretted having rejected what I still felt was insulting to me and degrading to her; simply that my manner should have been different. There was no necessity or excuse for violence in showing her that I would not, could not, accept from gratitude what only love has the right to give. And I had long been casting about for some way to apologize—not easy to do, when her distant manner toward me made it difficult for me to find even the necessary commonplaces to "keep up appearances" before the servants on the few occasions on which we accidentally met.

But, as I was saying, I came up from the office and stretched myself on the lounge in my private room adjoining the library. I had read myself into a doze, when a servant brought me a card. I glanced at it as it lay upon his extended tray. "General Monson," I read aloud. "What does the damned rascal want?" I asked.

The servant smiled. He knew as well as I how Monson, after I dismissed him with a present of six months' pay, had given the newspapers the story—or, rather, his version of the story—of my efforts to educate myself in the "arts and graces of a gentleman."

"Mr. Monson says he wishes to see you particularly, sir," said he.

"Well—I'll see him," said I. I despised him too much to dislike him, and I thought he might possibly be in want. But that notion vanished the instant I set eyes upon him. He was obviously at the very top of the wave. "Hello, Monson," was my greeting. In it no reminder of his treachery. "Howdy, Blacklock," said he. "I've come on a little errand for Mrs. Langdon." Then, with that nasty grin of his: "You know, I'm looking after things for her since the bust-up."

"No, I didn't know," said I curtly, suppressing my instant curiosity. "What does Mrs. Langdon want?"

"To see you—for just a few minutes—whenever it is convenient."

"If Mrs. Langdon has business with me, I'll see her at my office," said I. She was one of the fashionables that had got herself into my black books by her treatment of Anita since the break with the Ellersleys.

"She wishes to come to you here—this afternoon, if you are to be at home. She asked me to say that her business is important—and very private."

I hesitated, but I could think of no good excuse for refusing. "I'll be here an hour," said I. "Good day."

He gave me no time to change my mind. Something—perhaps it was his curious expression as he took himself off—made me begin to regret. The more I thought of the matter, the less I thought of my having made any civil concession to a woman who had acted so badly toward Anita and myself. He had not been gone a quarter of an hour before I went to Anita in her sitting room. Always, the instant I entered the outer door of her part of our house, that powerful, intoxicating fascination that she had for me began to take possession of my senses. It was in every garment she wore. It seemed to linger in any place where she had been, for a long time after she left it. She was at a small desk by the window, was writing letters.

"May I interrupt?" said I. "Monson was here a few minutes ago—from Mrs. Langdon. She wants to see me. I told him I would see her here. Then it occurred to me that perhaps I had been too good-natured. What do you think?"

trouble you to close the door?" said she, when the servant had withdrawn.

I closed the door. "I've come," she began, without seating herself, "to make you as unhappy, I fear, as I am. I've hesitated long before coming. But I am desperate. The one hope I have left is that you and I between us may be able to—to—that you and I may be able to help each other."

I waited. "I suppose there are people," she went on, "who have never known what it was to—really to care for some one else. They would despise me for clinging to a man after he has shown me that—that his love has ceased."

"Pardon me, Mrs. Langdon," I interrupted. "You apparently think your husband and I are intimate friends. Before you go any further, I must disabuse you of that idea."

She looked at me in open astonishment. "You do not know why my husband has left me?"

"Until a few minutes ago, I did not know that he had left you," I said. "And I do not wish to know why."

Her expression of astonishment changed to mockery. "Oh!" she sneered. "Your wife has fooled you into thinking it a one-sided affair. Well, I tell you, she is as much to blame as he—more. For he did love me when he married me; did love me until she got him under her spell again."

I thought I understood. "You have been misled, Mrs. Langdon," said I gently, pitying her as the victim of her insane jealousy. "You have—"

"Ask your wife," she interrupted angrily. "Hereafter, you can't pretend ignorance. For I'll at least be revenged. She failed utterly to trap him into marriage when she was a poor girl, and—"

"Before you go any further," said I coldly, "let me set you right. My wife was at one time engaged to your husband's brother, but—"

"Tom?" she interrupted. And her laugh made me bite my lip. "So she told you that! I don't see how she dared. Why, everybody knows that she and Mowbray were engaged, and that he broke it off to marry me."

All in an instant everything that had been confused in my affairs at home and down town became clear. I understood why I had been pursued relentlessly in Wall street; why I had been unable to make the least impression on the barriers between Anita and myself. You will imagine that some terrible emotion at once dominated me. But this is not a romance; only the veracious chronicle of certain human beings. My first emotion was—relief that it was not Tom Langdon. "I ought to have known she couldn't care for him," said I to myself. I, contending with Tom Langdon for a woman's love had always made me shrink. But Mowbray—that was vastly different. My respect for myself and for Anita rose.

"No," said I to Mrs. Langdon, "my wife did not tell me, never spoke of it. What I said to you was purely a guess of my own. I had no interest in the matter—and haven't. I have absolute confidence in my wife. I feel ashamed that you have provoked me into saying so. I opened the door."

"I am not going yet," said she angrily. "Yesterday morning Mowbray and she were riding together in the Riverside drive. Ask her groom."

"What of it?" said I. Then, as she did not rise, I rang the bell. When the servant came, I said: "Please tell Mrs. Blacklock that Mrs. Langdon is in the library—and that I am here, and gave you the message."

As soon as the servant was gone, she said: "No doubt she'll lie to you. These women that steal other women's property are usually clever at fooling their own silly husbands."

"I do not intend to ask her," I replied. "To ask her would be an insult."

She made no comment beyond a scornful toss of the head. We both had our gaze fixed upon the door through which Anita would enter. When she finally did appear, I, after one glance at her, turned—I must have been triumphantly—upon her accuser. I had not doubted, but where is the faith that is not the stronger for confirmation? And confirmation there was in the very atmosphere round that stately, still figure. She looked calmly, first at Mrs. Langdon, then at me.

"I sent for you," said I, "because I thought that you, rather than I, should request Mrs. Langdon to leave your house."

At that Mrs. Langdon was on her feet, and blazing. "Fool!" she flared at me. "Oh, the fools women make of men!" Then to Anita: "You—you—But no, I must not permit you to drag me down to your level. Tell your husband—tell him that you were riding with my husband in the Riverside drive yesterday."

I stepped between her and Anita. "My wife will not answer you," said I. "I hope, Madam, you will spare us the necessity of a painful scene. But leave you must—at once."

She looked wildly round, clasped her hands, suddenly burst into tears. If she had but known, she could have had her own way after that, without any attempt from me to oppose her. For she was evidently unutterably wretched—and no one knew better than I the sufferings of unreturned love. But she had given me up; slowly, sobbing, she left the room I opening the door for her and closing it behind her.

"I almost broke down myself," said I to Anita. "Poor woman! How can you be so calm? You women in your relations with each other are a mystery."

FOR EXTENSION OF RAILROAD CONTROL

KEYNOTE OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS AT INDIANAPOLIS.

FIRM BUT FAIR POLICY

Boon to Public and to Corporations Seen in Wise National Regulation—Men of Predatory Wealth a Peril.

Indianapolis, Ind.—After paying a tribute to the men who gave up their lives that the union might be maintained, and after speaking in praise of the gallantry, patriotism and devotion of Gen. Lawton, President Roosevelt Thursday turned his attention to the economic problems of the hour, making particular and pointed reference to the matter of federal control of the railroads.

Greater Peril Than Anarchists.

The president made the flat statement that the country is in greater peril from the predatory rich than it is from the socialists and anarchists. He inveighed against the evils of over-capitalization and recommended that the government be given power to take account of the physical properties of the railroads. He touched on the evils of car shortages and made recommendations for their correction.

The principal points made in the address, which was lengthy, follow:

Stop Crimes of Cunning.

"The power of the nation must be exerted to stop crimes of cunning no less than crimes of violence."

"One great problem that we have before us is to preserve the rights of property; and these can only be preserved if we remember that they are in less jeopardy from the socialist and the anarchist than from the predatory man of wealth."

"Every federal law dealing with corporations or with railroads has been a step in advance in the right direction. . . . There will be no halt in the forward movement toward a full development of this policy; and those who wish us to take a step backward or to stand still, as they say, and invited an outbreak of the very social clam they fear."

Closer Railroad Control Certain.

"The movement to regulate railroads has come to stay. The people of this country have made up their minds—and wisely made up their minds—to exercise a closer control over all kinds of public service corporations, including railroads. Every honestly managed railway will gain and not lose by the policy."

"We favor the railroad manager who keeps in close touch with the people along his line rather than in close touch with the speculative market."

Needs of Commerce Commission.

"Ample provision should be made by congress to enable the interstate commerce commission, by the employment of a sufficient force of experts, to undertake the physical valuation of each and any railroad in the country, whenever and so soon as in the opinion of the commission the valuation of any road would be of value to the commission in its work."

"It is plainly inadvisable for the government to undertake to direct the physical operation of the railways save in wholly exceptional cases; and the supervision and control it exercises should be entirely adequate to secure its ends, and yet no more harassing than is necessary to secure these ends."

Warning to Railroad Men.

"Let the big railroad man scrupulously refrain from any effort to influence politics or government save as it is the duty of every good citizen in legitimate ways to try to influence politics and government."

"In providing against overcapitalization we shall harm no human being who is honest; and we shall benefit many, for overcapitalization often means an inflation that invites business panic. . . . and puts a premium on gambling and business trickery."

"We hope as one of the chief means for betterment of conditions to secure as complete publicity in the affairs of the railroads as now obtains with regard to national banks. There need be no fear on the part of investors that movement for national supervision and control over railways will be for their detriment."

"I ask for full power to be given the federal government because no single state can by legislation effectually cope with these powerful corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and while doing them full justice, exact from them in return full justice to others."

"The shippers of the country must be supplied generously with cars and all other equipment necessary to properly care for our commerce, and all this means that the national government must be given full and effective power of supervision and control."

Former Bank Teller Is Guilty.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Thomas W. Harvey, former teller of the Enterprise National bank, of Allegheny, Pa., was found guilty on 33 counts for making false entries and not guilty on three counts charging misappropriation of funds of the bank. He has not been sentenced.

George L. Ralston, former individual bookkeeper of the bank, is now on trial upon charges of making false entries and abstracting funds of the bank.

A Suggestion That Came too Late.
Lady—To-day I am 30 years old. Oh, why didn't my parents postpone their wedding for ten years!—Flegende Blatetter.

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C.
V. Pepper. He writes, I was in bed entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all help had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work. Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds, 50 and $1.00 at J. H. Swan's drug store. Trial bottle free.

Gardens in English City.

Consul W. P. Mahlin writes that about 600 acres within the boundaries of Nottingham city, England, are devoted to allotment gardens, and the number of holders exceeds 4,000.

trial size box of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Let me send it now. It is a snow-white, creamy, healing antiseptic balm. Containing such healing ingredients as Oil Eucaliptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., it gives instant and lasting relief to catarrh of the nose and throat. Make the free test and Napoleon as Stage Hero.

It is said that no fewer than between 500 and 600 plays—dramas, comedies and operettas—have had Napoleon for their hero.

A prompt pleasant, good remedy for coughs and colds, is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It is especially recommended for babies and children, but good for every member of the family. It contains no opiates and does not constipate. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourage and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent
that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urines too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy.
The mild and the immediate effect of

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gov. Hughes seems determined to give New York politics the benefit of the open air treatment.

The latest reports from London indicate that the Woman Suffragists are not doing anything much but suffering.

It would be a sad blow to Mr. Hearst's feelings if a recount should show that he was not a political martyr after all.

As if the San Francisco graft mess were not malodorous enough already, the public there declares it can detect a strong odor of Standard Oil about it.

The president of the Pennsylvania gives notice that if the commuters do not like the new rates of fare on its road, they can walk.

Telegrams from San Francisco state that the people have mobbed several Japanese restaurants, but the dispatches do not say whether the outbreak was wholly racial or gastronomic.

There is considerable hesitancy on the part of the Administration as to whether to institute prosecutions against the Harriman railroad combination or not. The special attorneys who have been engaged on the case hold that such a prosecution would be legally successful. The Supreme Court at any time may render a decision on the law in the case that will make the success assured. Yet there is hesitation. Such a prosecution against the Harriman lines would eventually hit all the other great systems of the country. It would force the dissolution of the Southern system, the breaking up of what is known as the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, the disintegration of the Boston and Maine, and make the New York Central let go its hold on the Erie. It would mean a wholesale revolution of the railroad policy of the country, and would prevent the combination and cheapening of transportation that can come from the unification of several roads if the combination is honestly managed. The question seems to have resolved itself from a matter of law into one of public policy, and the decision of the government as to what it will do in the matter is awaited with more than ordinary interest.

Prof. Alexander Graham Bell of world wide fame as the inventor of the telephone, has just come back to Washington after having the honorary degree of Doctor of Sciences bestowed upon him by Oxford University in England. He is to remain in Washington but a few days before going north to his summer place in Nova Scotia where he will put in the season working on his famous tetrahedral kite which he hopes will be developed into a flying machine.

"We call lock," for eye told like every except the me. My law and I got through yarious broke-by. his machine this summer, but that although an old man he will ride in one yet. This means a total revolution in real estate values all over the world, and a relegation of the good roads problem to a second place in the march of progress. Of course, the average man would rather see flying machines than hear them talked about, but the mere fact that such an eminent scientist as Prof. Bell looks forward to them confidentially should be an assurance to the public that we are on the eve of a development, the most important since the invention of the steam engine.

Secretary Taft is flying the tariff revision signal, and the chances are that it will prove the battle flag of the coming campaign. The only trouble is that it is likely to be more of an issue within the party than it is outside. The rank and file of the tariff revision party is made up almost as much of republicans as of democrats, more so in fact if you take tariff revision to mean revision, and not free trade. The people as a rule want it, but the leaders of the republican party are against it. From a purely political standpoint, the talk of revision is perhaps bad at this time. Many of the schedules as they now stand are iniquitous. They have contributed largely to building up the prosperity of the country, but the necessity for them has passed away. Still manufacturers all over the country are keenly in favor of them because they enable the manufacturer to maintain high prices, and if he has any surplus of which he has had very little so far, he can sell abroad at reduced prices. Thus for the people at large, revision would be a blessing. But the enemies of revision say and with a certain amount of truth, that the crest of the prosperity wave has been reached if it has not passed. The attacks on the railroads and other corporate interests has made capital timid, and if you prepare in earnest now for revision on the eve of the election, you will have the manufacturers laying off men and curtailing expenses. Importers naturally will hold off buying in the hope of cheaper prices, the railroads will be restricted in freight tariff, and you will invite hard times with a vengeance. It is a nice problem to solve. Perhaps a dose of hard times is necessary as a prelude to better times in the future.

The opening dance at C. E. Herman's Saturday night was largely attended. Guests from the neighboring hotels with the large crowd at Mr. Herman's made the first dance of the season a success in every way.

A Fortunate Texan.
Mr. E. W. Goodloe, of 107, St. Louis st., Dallas, Texas, says: In the past year I have become acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, and no laxative I ever before tried so effectively disposes of malaria and biliousness. They don't grind or grip 25 cents at J. H. Swan's drug store.

Dull Times.
"Hello!" said the funny man to Finnegan the undertaker. "I suppose your business is dead with you?" "Faith it's worse than that," replied Finnegan. "Shure, I haven't buried a livin' soul in near a month."

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else.
It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success to the stomach, and his Restorative, with its original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.
For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and hollow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of the stomach as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Kodol Digests What You Eat.
Bottles only. Relieves indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas, etc.
Prepared by E. C. DeWITT & CO., CHICAGO.

It is said that Col. Vidvard has signified his intention of erecting two monuments during the pow-wow to be held at his place this summer. One monument is to be erected over the grave of Chief Badist whose grave was located on the Vidvard farm last year, and the other monument to be erected in the memory of Chief Lou-iseau, whose grave was located some years ago.

C. H. Harford on Monday morning shipped six dozen spring chickens, which would average about one and three quarters pounds each, to Chicago. He expects to receive the highest market price for this shipment as they are exceptionally fine ones and no doubt he will realize about about 50 cents apiece for them.

Little Phyllis Morley entertained a few of her little friends on Saturday afternoon in honor of her fourth birthday. The little tots spent the afternoon in playing games and having a jolly good time, and all returned home tired but happy and wishing for the opportunity of helping Phyllis to celebrate many more happy birthdays.

It has been frequently suggested and the suggestion is a good one, for every farmer to place his name and the name of his farm on his road gate. Not only would persons driving to a place more easily find it, but it would add more pleasure and interest to people driving from place to place. This last result would have special effect with regard to well kept and pretty houses. An observing person will seldom pass a beautiful farm without desiring to know who its enterprising owner is.

Rev. Henry Sponholz, who is located at Athens, Wis., visited his sister, Mrs. John Sibley, last week. He was accompanied by Miss Helena Sponholz of Genoa, Wis., who is a successful music teacher at that place.

The legislature has passed a bill in which horsehoers throughout the state are interested. It is designed to assist them in collecting their bills. The measure makes the shoeing of a steed a lien on the horse, the same as a carpenter can put a lien on a building until his claim is satisfied.

A gold medal was last week presented to Joseph Gajdos for his bravery in saving Aarry Holstrom and Dr. L. Claussed from drowning in Grass Lake, and for his efforts to save John Baginski, who was drowned and whose body Gajdos recovered. Residents in the vicinity of Grass Lake took up a collection and purchased the medal.

Wednesday night of last week the home of Alex McDougall near Wilmet was completely destroyed by fire which is of unknown origin. Very little was saved from the fire. The house was an old one but had been remodeled and enlarged in the past few years. It was insured in the Millburn Mutual Insurance company for the sum of $800. The family are at present living in a granary which they have fitted up for a temporary residence. Mr. McDougall did not wait for the insurance company to adjust the loss before starting to rebuild, but on Thursday began hauling lumber for a new residence which will be rushed to completion.

A home talent play will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society at the M. E. church Friday evening, June 7. The play will be the hit of the season and will be composed of the same talent that gave The Merry Cobbler last winter which had such a great success and made a two-night stand to accommodate the crowds. The play is full of laughter and fun. Come and see Daniels, the funny man in the star cast as Mr. White the negro, and Wald as Mr. Armstrong, a widower with five children. These two gentlemen need no recommendation as they will be remembered long in their role in The Merry Cobbler. If you want to laugh and grow fat come out and see "Seenes in a Union Depot" and you will never regret it. The best of talent is there and lots of laugh. Admission, 25c and 15c.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!
